To-Morrow, Saturday

Deputy Fire Chief Binns, Battalion Chiefs Marshall and Kuss and four firemen were dragged early to-day from the sub-cellar of the Staats Zeltung Building, at No. 182 William street, where a fire that started at 6 o'clock and threatened to destroy the building, had enveloped the fire-fighters in a cloud of gas-charged smoke that keeled over man after man like so many tenpias. Six men had already been dragged from the cellar when Deputy Chie Binns collapsed, and the word went around that "the hardest man to put out" in the department was in danger.
